
Starlie Sokol-Hohne

Combining images of antiquity with contemporary mixed media and printmaking techniques, Starlie Sokol-Hohne creates visually stimulating works of art. Juxtaposing the past and present through collaged media, her work presents a timeless appeal that echoes distant eras, times of sea travel and unexplored territory. These visual images are further enhanced through the use of impasto, which renders the effect of a frescoed wall. Sokol-Hohne's unique technique, as well as her mastery of collage, has gained her a national reputation.

A native of California, Sokol-Hohne attended the University of California Los Angeles. Her work has been included in several group exhibitions throughout the United States and is included in numerous private collections. Various corporate collectors of Starlie Sokol-Hohne's work include Sprint, the Meyer Corporation, Paradigm Health Care and Security Capital Industrial.
